Special pre-election reports cover the period beginning the ninth day before an election and ending at 12 noon on the day before the election.

A special pre-election report must be filed with the Ethics Commission electronically, unless otherwise exempted from electronic filing. A special pre-election report must be received by the commission no later than the first business day after the date the contribution is accepted. A special pre-election report that is exempt from the electronic filing requirement is not required to be on a form prescribed by the commission; it may be on regular stationery.

Contributions disclosed on a special pre-election report must be disclosed again on the next required report.

Candidates for statewide office; district office filled by voters of more than one county; judicial district office filled by voters of only one county; State Board of Education; state senator; or state representative are subject to the requirement to file special pre-election reports.

Special pre-election reports are required if a candidate accepts a contribution or contributions from a person that total more than $1,000 during the reporting period for special pre-election reports. The candidate is required to report the amounts of the contributions, the full name and address of the contributor, and the dates of the contribution or contributions.
