University of Texas, El Paso, Texas

Maceo Crenshaw Dailey, Jr., earned his Ph. D. from Howard University. He has taught at Smith College, Howard University, Brown University, Boston College, Morgan State University, Spelman College, Colby College, New York University, and Morehouse College. He currently is associate professor in the History Department and director of African American Studies at the University of Texas, El Paso. Professor Dailey has published book chapters and essays in Digame, The Dictionary of Negro American Biography, Dictionary of the American Left, Theodore Roosevelt: Many Sided American, Leaders From the 1960s, Black Lives, Walking Integrity, Black Business and Economic Power; and articles in scholarly journals Contributions in Black Studies, The Review of Black Political Economy, Atlanta History, Sage, and Harvard Business History Review. He has served also as assistant editor for The Journal of Negro History. Dr. Dailey and Kristine Navarro co-edited the book, Wheresoever My People Chance To Dwell: Oral Interviews With African American Women of El Paso. (Black Classic Press: Baltimore, 2000) Along with Ruthe Winegarten, he edited Bernice Love Wiggins' Tuneful Tales (Texas Tech Press: Lubbock, 2002).

Within the last decade, Professor Dailey has given over one hundred speeches, served on thirty panels, and delivered twenty-five scholarly papers. He is in the process of completing a biography of Emmett Jay Scott. He has a book contract from Greenwood Press to complete The Booker T. Washington Encyclopedia. Named to Who's Who in the East, Who's Who Among American Teachers, Who's Who In America, and Who's Who In The World. Dr. Dailey also has made many television and radio appearances. He served on the Board of Directors of The Apex Museum and Hammonds House in Atlanta, Georgia, and has worked as a consultant to the Atlanta History Center and Smithsonian Museum. He is a member of the American Historical Association and The Association For The Study of Afro American Life and History. In Texas, he served as two term chair of the Board of Directors of Humanities Texas (state arm of National Endowment For Humanities), a commissioner on The Texas Emancipation Juneteenth Cultural and Historical Commission, The Advisory Committee for building of the Bob Bullock Texas Museum, and the Philosophical Society of Texas. In El Paso, Dr. Dailey is chairman of the Board of Directors of the McCall Neighborhood Cultural Center, a board member of The Child Crisis Center, El Paso Symphony, The Twelve Travelers Memorial of the Southwest (1998-02), Burnham Charter School, and advisory committee member of Texas Book Festival.

Professor Dailey was awarded the 1996 Alex W. Bealer Prize by The Atlanta Historical Society for the best article during the last two years on a non Atlanta topic published in The Atlanta History: A Journal of Georgia and the South for the essay titled "Neither 'Uncle Tom' Nor 'Accommodationist': Booker T. Washington, Emmett Jay Scott, and Constructionalism". In April, 1999, he was honored as "Man of Distinction" by the El Paso Alumnae Chapter of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. He was commissioned "Senior History Advisor to The State of Texas," 8th April, 2000. Within the last five years, Dr. Dailey has received over seventy plaques, citations of commendation, and certificates of appreciation from various local, state, and national organizations and community groups.
